THE BUILDING ACT.

We are loath to suggest additional business to the Legislative Council, knowing that they have already more before them than they will be able to accomplish before Christmas, but we are so much impressed with the importance to the whole community of the extension of the Building Act to the boundaries of the City, and a certain distance beyond, say two hundred yards, that we hope the Council will not separate without passing an Act so extending it. It was the intention of the Government to have done so at the last session of the old Council, but in consequence of a petition signed by a large number of persons interested in numerous buildings then erecting at Chippendale, and various other places in the outskirts of the city, it was resolved to postpone the measure for a short period, it being distinctly understood, however, that the Act would be extended in the course of the present year.

If any one has doubts as to the expediency of extending the Act, we would advise him to inspect the tenements at the south end of the town, and he will see that the houses built with wood and other inflammable materials, are being packed together in the most extraordinary manner, and that if a fire were to occur, nothing short of a miracle could prevent it from extending in a most alarming manner.

Another point to which the attention of the Council should be directed is, the drainage, not only of Sydney, but of every other town in the colony. This is a measure that will require great care and attention, and therefore we do not suggest that it should be taken into consideration with the general subject. It has attracted great attention in England lately, not only on account of its effects upon the physical but upon the moral condition of the people: for it is not to be supposed that religion and morality will prevail, when there is not even a possibility of common decency being observed. We perceive by latest paper, that in May last, Sir James GRANAHAM and the EARL OF LINCOLN brought in a Bill for "the better regulating the buildings of the metropolitan district, and to provide for the drainage thereof," which combines the provisions of the old Building Act, with certain matters respecting cleanliness.

The Bill contains no fewer than 143 clauses, by far the larger number of which relate to the due strength of houses, walls, and to build, the construction of foundations, party-walls, chimneys, &c., but that part of the Bill to which we at present intend our attention, is the provision it makes for securing proper ventilation and drainage. The chief enactments for these purposes are, that no house shall be built higher than ten feet from their foundations, unless its drains shall have been built, and made good into the same

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

NOTICES OF MOTION AND ORDERS OF THE DAY.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 3.

1. Mr. HAMILTON to move the reconsideration of the 11th Standing Order, with a view to its amendment.

2. Dr. NICHOLSON to move, that whereas the establishment of an overland route between the eastern parts of New South Wales and Port Essington will be of great and important addition to our geographical knowledge of the interior of Australia, and is an object, the accomplishment of which is so likely, to attend with great advantages to the commerce and other interests of the colony, by opening a direct line of communication with the islands of the Eastern Archipelago, with India, and other parts of Asia;—resolved, that a Committee be appointed to consider all the circumstances into the practicability of such a design, and the means whereby it may be carried into effect; and that they report to the Council the result of their enquiry, with as little delay as possible.

CONTINGENT NOTICES OF MOTION.

Dr. LONG to move the following resolution, when the Estimates of Expenditure shall have been disposed of:

1. That it is the opinion of this Council, that the system of representation established for this colony under the Act of the Imperial Parliament 5 and 6, Victoria, Chap. 10, 1832, and also in the law of the late Legislative Council of the Division of the Colony into Electoral Districts, is in several important particulars, inadequate to meet the actual wants of the colony, unless it is so altered, that it will remove a serious hindrance to its future advancement.

2. That as it is the obvious interest of this community to promote by every possible means the formation and spread of an agricultural population of virtuous character and industrious habits, throughout this territory, it is the opinion of this Council, that the elective franchise ought to be extended to all tenants of land, holding under-lease of not less than years, and paying less than twenty pounds sterling of yearly rent; such persons being generally of more importance as a body in this colony, than a large proportion of the mere occupants of dwelling-houses in towns, paying not more than twenty pounds of annual rent.

3. That as the prosperity and progressive advancement of this colony depend in great measure on the facilities afforded for the raising of all descriptions of stock on the waste lands, and on the soil of the colony, as within the present limits of location, it is the opinion of this Council, that the elective franchise should also be extended to all persons holding a license from the local Government to deposit stock on the Crown lands, and that the sum of fees of holding such a license, being, in the estimation of this Council, sufficient evidence of the respectable standing of the individual, and his wife, in every respect, for the exercise of this franchise.

4. That it is the opinion of this Council, that provision, to a moderate extent, should therefore be made forthwith for the establishment of Academic Institutions for Colleges or Schools in this territory; and that, for the purpose when necessary, various other bodies shall establish such a College or Institution; provided such College or Institution shall comprise not fewer than three professors, and a sufficient number of students; and that this Council, for a certain period or course of education, extending over not less than three years, in the languages, philosophy, and arts, a salary of £100 per annum shall be allowed to each professor, provided the whole to be paid by such Institution, and the sum to be paid by such Institution, £100 per annum.

5. That it is the opinion of this Council, that the town of Sydney, taking into consideration its actual extent and population, the comparatively large amount of capital invested in its buildings, and its general, and especially its commercial importance, as the principal emporium of British commerce in this hemisphere, is not adequately represented in this Council; and that it ought, therefore, to return two additional members to this House.

6. That it is the opinion of this Council, that the town of Melbourne, considering its extent and population, and the amount of capital invested in its buildings, and its general, and especially its commercial importance, as the capital of an extensive district, is not adequately represented in this House, and that it is only entitled to return an additional representative to the Colonial Legislature.

ing; each schoolmaster of such schools, to be provided at the expense of the district with a school-house and dwelling-house, and a fixed salary not exceeding £50 per annum with permission to charge fees from the pupils, not exceeding 5s per quarter.

7. That it is the opinion of this Council that the City Council of Sydney and the Town Council of Melbourne, respectively, be authorized to establish schools for training apprentices, and said City or Town, respectively, for the practical instruction of intending schoolmasters, in the business of teaching; the head master of such school to receive a salary not exceeding £100 per annum, with the other privileges and indulgences above enumerated.

8. That it is expedient and necessary, in order to render the benefits of education as easily accessible as possible throughout the territory, that provision should be made for the establishment and support of schools of a superior order, accompanied with the necessary or common schools, it should be lawful for the respective other municipalities, Lads, having the powers of a District Council, to establish one or more Grammars or High Schools in any town or city having a population of not fewer than 10,000 souls, and a salary not exceeding £100 per annum, with permission to charge fees not exceeding 10s per quarter.

9. That as the comparatively low state of education throughout this territory is to be, inasmuch as no small degree, to the incompetency of a large proportion of the inhabitants of the colony, as well to the qualifications of the colonists, and the high hire reserved for their services, and the uncertain tenure of their appointments, it is absolutely necessary to make provision for the intellectual training of the future inhabitants of the colony, as well as for that portion of the colonial youth who may desire to participate in the benefits of an academic education whether with a view to professional pursuits or to the general benefit of life.

10. That it is the opinion of this Council, that provision, to a moderate extent, should therefore be made forthwith for the establishment of Academic Institutions for Colleges or Schools in this territory; and that, for the purpose when necessary, various other bodies shall establish such a College or Institution; provided such College or Institution shall comprise not fewer than three professors, and a sufficient number of students; and that this Council, for a certain period or course of education, extending over not less than three years, in the languages, philosophy, and arts, a salary of £100 per annum shall be allowed to each professor, provided the whole to be paid by such Institution, and the sum to be paid by such Institution, £100 per annum.

11. That it is the opinion of this Council that the town of Orange, School of this colony, being the chief centre of population, and that henceforth be conducted on the principles embodied in the foregoing resolutions, and should no longer be maintained or regarded as sectarian and denominational establishments.

12. That it is the opinion of this House, that until machinery of a more suitable and permanent character for superintending the entire department of public institutions in this colony can be duly organized and established, the existing committee of this Council, for a certain period or course of education, extending over not less than three years, in the languages, philosophy, and arts, a salary of £100 per annum shall be allowed to each professor, provided the whole to be paid by such Institution, and the sum to be paid by such Institution, £100 per annum.

13. That it is the opinion of this Council, that the town of Maitland, being the seat of government of this colony, and the centre of various important and valuable industries, and manufacturers, and its great and growing importance as the principal emporium of British commerce in this hemisphere, is not adequately represented in this Council; and that it ought, therefore, to return two additional members to this House.

14. That it is the opinion of this Council, that the town of Newcastle being the seat of government of this colony, and the centre of various important and valuable industries, and manufacturers, should be disjoined from the other Northumberland, Cessnock, and Durban, and be adequately represented in this Council; and that it ought, therefore, to return two additional members to this House.

15. That it is the opinion of this Council, that the town of Goulburn, being the seat of government of this colony, and the centre of various important and valuable industries, and manufacturers, should be disjoined from the other Northumberland, Cessnock, and Durban, and be adequately represented in this Council; and that it ought, therefore, to return two additional members to this House.

16. That it is the opinion of this Council, that the town of Maitland, being the seat of government of this colony, and the centre of various important and valuable industries, and manufacturers, should be disjoined from the other Northumberland, Cessnock, and Durban, and be adequately represented in this Council; and that it ought, therefore, to return two additional members to this House.

17. That it is the opinion of this Council, that the town of Goulburn, being the seat of government of this colony, and the centre of various important and valuable industries, and manufacturers, should be disjoined from the other Northumberland, Cessnock, and Durban, and be adequately represented in this Council; and that it ought, therefore, to return two additional members to this House.

18. That it is the opinion of this Council, that the town of Maitland, being the seat of government of this colony, and the centre of various important and valuable industries, and manufacturers, should be disjoined from the other Northumberland, Cessnock, and Durban, and be adequately represented in this Council; and that it ought, therefore, to return two additional members to this House.

19. That it is the opinion of this Council, that the town of Goulburn, being the seat of government of this colony, and the centre of various important and valuable industries, and manufacturers, should be disjoined from the other Northumberland, Cessnock, and Durban, and be adequately represented in this Council; and that it ought, therefore, to return two additional members to this House.

20. That it is the opinion of this Council, that the town of Maitland, being the seat of government of this colony, and the centre of various important and valuable industries, and manufacturers, should be disjoined from the other Northumberland, Cessnock, and Durban, and be adequately represented in this Council; and that it ought, therefore, to return two additional members to this House.

21. That it is the opinion of this Council, that the town of Goulburn, being the seat of government of this colony, and the centre of various important and valuable industries, and manufacturers, should be disjoined from the other Northumberland, Cessnock, and Durban, and be adequately represented in this Council; and that it ought, therefore, to return two additional members to this House.

22. That it is the opinion of this Council, that the town of Maitland, being the seat of government of this colony, and the centre of various important and valuable industries, and manufacturers, should be disjoined from the other Northumberland, Cessnock, and Durban, and be adequately represented in this Council; and that it ought, therefore, to return two additional members to this House.
